TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

We have received the following highly interesting despatch, giving further particulars concerning the terrible Persian famine, from our correspondent at London:—

LONDON, July 28, 1871.

The reports we are receiving here give new and, if possible, even more horrible and appalling details of the Persian famine.

The dearth is very MUCH MORE WIDESPREAD than at first reported. In place of being confined to the province of Khorassan it extends over the entire land. Already the loss of life has been fearful. Persia is said, on reliable authority, to have lost fifty per cent of her population. Thousands of people, half-famished, have dragged themselves

ACROSS THE FRONTIER into Turkish Arabia and Cabool, while those who have not had the energy to emigrate, or have been prevented from doing so by the strong arm of the government, are daily dying by thousands of starvation. A Persian subject cannot leave his native country, even to go upon a pilgrimage to Mehed Hosein or to Mecca without SPECIAL PERMISSION from the authorities, and this permission is even now, in spite of the present appalling condition of the country, still insisted upon. The people in desperation, however, use every means to elude the vigilance of the government and escape into happier lands.

It appears that there was A TERRIBLE DROUGHT last year, which was followed as a natural consequence by a partial failure of the crops. There was great suffering and privation, but comparatively little mortality.

THE AMERICAN WAR A CAUSE OF THE FAMINE. It is a curious fact that this famine is, to a certain extent, one result, though of course an indirect one, of the American civil war. There is a belt of country in Persia which is eminently well calculated for the production of cotton, and the high price of that article seven or eight years ago induced many of the smaller cultivators to abandon raising other crops and embark in its production. This opening for commerce rapidly developed into a large trade, and a couple of lines of steamers have been started from Bombay to Bushire, a port on the Persian Gulf, which is the only one of importance on Persia's limited sea coast. The money gained by the sale of the cotton was employed to buy provisions from Fars, or Faristan, and the other southern provinces, which are better adapted to the growth of wheat and rice. The high price of opium, owing to the tax imposed upon its export by the British Indian government, has also stimulated the production of poppies in place of grain. Last year there were two thousand chests of this drug exported from Bushire. The silk trade has also largely increased. These causes have all operated to diminish the area of land employed in the raising of provisions, and have doubtless tended to aggravate the consequences of the present bad season.

INHUMANITY OF THE GOVERNMENT. The partial famine last year exhausted such small accumulated stocks of provisions as were in the country. The people, however, managed to linger through the winter, sustained by the hope that the spring crop (there are two yearly crops in Persia) would bring back plenty. Early in the year, in spite of the general impoverishment of the people, the government, with shocking inhumanity, raised the taxes. This completed the misery of its unhappy subjects. What little money they had left was torn from them, and they were left beggared to face a year whose horrors had but begun.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE INCREASED TAXATION.

The first effect of the increased taxation was to drive the people from their homes in the country to the big cities, as, owing to a curious law, the imposts upon tillers of the soil are very much heavier than those exacted from the dwellers in towns. In cities, indeed, the mass of the population practically escape taxation, and the revenue is raised, with the exception of a poll tax, from the merchants.

THE FAMINE GROWS WORSE.

Before the end of winter the famine had spread from Faristan to the other provinces, which depended upon it for supplies. The cities of Isfahan, Yazd, Kerman and Shiraz were crowded with starving multitudes. Teheran, the capital, suffered least, but even there the privations were terrible. Wheat in Kerman rose to nine times its usual price.

FAILURE OF THE NEW CROP.

The new crop has failed also. The people have endeavored to keep themselves alive by eating grass and roots, but even this scanty nourishment has now been exhausted.

CHILDREN SOLD INTO SLAVERY.

In Khorassan, which borders on Cabool and the wild steppes of Central Asia, people sold their children into slavery among the Turcomans in order to save them from starvation and at the same time to acquire a few tomanes to spend in the bazaar for sustenance.

CANNIBALISM.

It would be well if all the provinces could have disposed of their children in the same manner.

DEVOURING THEIR OWN CHILDREN.

In Faristan parents slew and then devoured their offspring.

MAKING A BANQUET UPON CORPSES.

In Isfahan men have been caught in the act of exhuming the corpses of the dead for the purpose of eating them.

ALL THE HORSES EATEN.

Among the results of the famine may be mentioned that all domestic animals, even horses, of which Persia raised a great many, not only for her own use, but also for exportation to India, have been killed and eaten.

THE CEMETRIES GUARDED.

A late despatch further informs us that the cemeteries in Shiraz have to be guarded by troops, lest the people, infuriated by hunger, should rifle them of their ghastly contents.

NO RELIEF.

The people are almost beyond the reach of help. Even if food were brought from India there are no cattle left to transport it into the interior; and even if there were, it is a month's journey from Bushire to Isfahan, and six weeks to Khorassan.

THE WORST FAMINE ON RECORD.

This dearth will probably be the most horrible on record. Two years ago a couple of millions of people died in India of starvation. Unless, however, the Persian government consents to the deportation of its subjects, there will be among its eight millions of people a mortality even more appalling than this.

THE PLAGUE.

The report that the plague has broken out is not confirmed; but the cholera and famine fever are busily at work, and these are sufficiently terrible agents of death. The famine-stricken people are covered with hideous sores, the consequence of hunger, while they burn in the tortures of a devouring fever.

QUARANTINED.

The Russian government, in view of the probability of the cholera spreading into its dominions, has established quarantine regulations along the frontier. One path of escape for the Persians is thus blocked up. Probably the British Indian government will soon adopt similar precautions, and this will cause the steamers from Bombay to stop running.

ENGLAND.

THE LONDON TIMES CENSURING GOVERNOR HOFFMAN for Permitting the Orange Procession.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

LONDON, July 28, 1871.

The London Times of to-day in an editorial upon the New York riots, full particulars of which have reached here by the American mails, says, in reference to the procession of the Orangemen, that Governor Hoffman incurred a terrible responsibility in permitting it to take place and promising it protection.

The State, says the Times, ought to interfere with the parades of both the Orangemen and Ribbonmen. It should not encourage antagonism, and should bring all persons to recognize its rules, dealing equally with the national feelings and prejudices of all.
